Lora is the dau of John Nelson and Alice (Riddle) Anderson. Hassel, for many years an active leader in the county, was involved in many different interests at various points in his life. He went into and out of the lumbering-sawmill business a couple of times, and was foreman for the state Highway department operations for a number of years, sheriff of Letcher County one term. He also worked in his later years at Hoover's Department Store.

Hassel was active in Democratic party activities and was party patronage chief when A.B. "Happy" Chandler was governor.

R.B., a farmer at Blackey, was a well known Caudill family historian, collecting data for many years. R.B. was the first postmaster at Blackey after it was established the second time in 1919, the first Blackey postoffice was discontinued in 1913, this second Blackey postoffice was first set up at the mouth of Elk Creek. The old Indian Bottom name for the community was abandoned when the postoffice department said it was to long a name. For many years R.B. operated a feed store in Blackey. R.B. served as clerk of the Old Indian Bottom Church of Regular Baptist, at the mouth of Rockhouse Creek, and an authority on the church history, which church was founded in 1810. Also he was active in the large Letcher County Caudill reunion for many years. Early issues of the Mountain Eagle are filled with obits written by R.B.. He was a charter member and chairman of the Letcher County Soil Conservation District Board.

Andrews he operated a drive-in restaurant in Oklahoma. Then he returned to Blackey, Ky. to operate a general store. His store at Blackey has a long front porch, piled high with a large variety of goods from fishing poles to horse collars. This was merchandise that was never locked up. He said people wouldn't steal from him, however most knew he slept in a private room just inside the store, C.B. always seemed to know where any article was in the myriad stacks of merchandise. Each article was marked with a price. If anyone started to hazzle the price he would merely take the article back and replace it on the shelf and move on to the next customer.
